A Picnic Song

A picnic, a picnic,
A picnic's lots of fun!
Come with us, there's lots of food,
For a picnic in the sun.

Are there any apples?
Is there any bread?
Yes, there's lots of lovely food,
For all my friends and me.

Is there any milk?
Is there any juice?
Yes, there are lots of lovely drinks,
Come along and see.

Are there any sandwiches?
Is there any cake?
Yes, there are lots of lovely things,
For a picnic by the lake.

A Supermarket Food Adventure

On a sunny Saturday morning, Ben, Lucy, Horrocks and Zelda push a big shopping cart into the supermarket. There is a big supermarket with shining lights, and four happy friends are ready for an adventure.

They first walk into the fruit section. There are red apples, yellow bananas, and juicy oranges piled high like little hills. There is also a huge green watermelon that looks like a giant ball. Horrocks runs over and pats the watermelon, saying, "It is as big as my tummy!" But Zelda crouches down and points at the grapes. "Shh! There is a tiny ant crawling on a grape," she whispers. Everyone bends down to look at the little ant.

Then they move to the vegetable section. There are long carrots, round tomatoes, and leafy lettuce. On a big crate(木箱) in the middle, there is a huge pumpkin sitting like a king. Ben suddenly has an idea. He pretends to be serious and shouts, "Look! There is a Pumpkin King, and there are his broccoli soldiers standing around him!" Lucy giggles and points at the broccoli next to it. "Then there is a broccoli monster, too!" she adds. The four children start making up stories about the king and the monster right there in the vegetable aisle.

As they wander on, they feel some special smells. There is bakery section! There are fresh baguettes, soft buns, and sweet doughnuts with shiny glaze. There is such a lovely, warm smell that fills the whole aisle. Horrocks takes a deep breath and says, "There is magic in this smell." Zelda winks and adds, "And there are little fairies baking inside the oven – that's why the bread is so fluffy!" They imagine a group of tiny fairies casting spells in the bakery.

Suddenly they feel very thirsty, so they turn into the drinks aisle. There are colorful juice boxes, big milk jugs, and rows of fizzy soda cans. Inside a large cold fridge, there is a whole shelf full of strawberry yogurt. Lucy picks up a box of strawberry milk and exclaims, "There is a pink cow on this box!" Ben leans over and counts the pictures on the package. "And there are five dancing strawberries on it – they look so happy!" They almost want to put every flavor of juice into their cart.

Finally, they arrive at the snack section – the most exciting part of all! There are crispy chips, salty pretzels, and chocolate bars with nuts. Even better, there is a whole shelf just for cream-filled cookies. Suddenly Horrocks jumps with joy because there are his favorite star-shaped crackers! He hugs the bag like a treasure. Zelda looks at the candy shelf next to it and counts. "Wow, there are twenty different kinds of candy here!" she says, her eyes sparkling.

They fill the cart with all kinds of goodies and go to the checkout. The cashier smiles at their cart and says, "There is so much food in your cart!" Ben answers proudly, "Yes! And there are four hungry friends ready for a big picnic!"

Outside the supermarket, the sun shines on their faces. As they walk home, Lucy says, "There is a story in every food we choose." Zelda nods. "And there are always surprises in the supermarket – today we find a king, fairies, and dancing strawberries!" Horrocks hugs his star-shaped crackers and adds happily, "There is one more thing – there is love in every bite we share."

They laugh and skip, carrying bags of food back home. Tonight they cook a big feast together and eat all the happiness they find in the supermarket. Because in that big store, there is not just food, but also laughter, friendship, and endless imagination.
